

The eRate program has meant so much to students and library patrons in Chicago, in Illinois, and across this country. Equitable access to broadband resources empowers our most disadvantaged young people. Now, demand has far outstripped the available funding. It is time to demonstrate our commitment to the future of our children by providing them with the access and tools they need to succeed.